During the summer of 2019 Peter Benjamin and wife Megan contacted Peter's London-based, Israel-born but London-educated maternal second cousin, Danny Unger, the grandson of my mother Lili's sister Gretel. Together we decided to drive down to Bochum from Amsterdam for the day, and we found the headstones of our respective forbears in Bochum's Jewish Cemetery. Peter was very moved and had a great sense of closure in seeing all those names on headstones. "Luckily all my grandparents had died by 1938, and were spared the Nazi excesses. Danny and I cleaned all the headstones, most covered with a green moss, that of his great grandfather and my grandfather Jacob Goldstaub, my paternal grandparents Julius and Rosa Benjamin, Bernard Benjamin (Julius's brother) and including those of the Wassermann family."
